General Safety Tips Know how to swim Wear your life jacket/PFD at all times

- Know the symptoms and treatment for hypothermia, one of the leading causes of canoeing deaths
- Be prepared. Carry an extra paddle and PFD, first aid kit, throw line, bailer, sound signalling device, waterproof flashlight, good quality map of the area and compass. Dry clothes and extra food and water are also good to pack
- Let at least one responsible person know where you are going and when you are expected to return
- Take care around rapids, especially if you are new to paddlina
- Think twice before paddling the Nottawasaga in the early spring. High water levels, cold temperatures, strong currents and floating debris are common, and make paddling extremely dangerous
- Watch for deadheads (partially submerged logs), which are common along the paddling routes
- Use caution when you enter or leave your boat, as high muddy banks are common along most of Nottawasaga
- Winds can generate large waves quickly on open water such as Georgian Bay, Jacks Lake, or parts of the Minesing Wetlands during periods of high water. Stay close to shore in such situations

Safety in the Minesing Wetlands

Whichever route you take, be prepared. The Minesing Wetlands are an isolated wilderness area and appropriate cautions need to be made to ensure a safe trip. Remember to stay within the river channel while exploring the Minesing Wetlands, especially when the area is experiencing high water levels. Always be sure to carry a good map and GPS; many experienced paddlers have gotten lost as there is no defined channels during high water events. A sturdy canoe or kayak are recommended; standup paddle boards are not suitable.

If you are new to the Nottawasaga River or Minesing Wetlands, we recommend taking advantage of the knowledgeable guides who frequently lead trips in these areas. Additionally, the Friends of Minesing Wetlands, a volunteer group dedicated to protecting and promoting the Minesing Wetlands, often offer guided group tours in the spring. For additional details on their tours, visit minesingwetlands.ca.

Safety on Nottawasaga Bay

Georgian Bay is a vast body of water and conditions can change quickly. If you seek calmer waters, hugging the shoreline is recommended or paddle further out if you're more experienced and looking for more adventure. Be advised that the winds can change at a moment's notice and the bay can become extremely rough. The wind tends to come from the west, so paddling from Beach Area I towards the escarpment and Beach Area 6 may require additional energy. The bay is sandy and shallow, so as a general rule, try to stay within a four-foot depth; if you get tired, you can always walk back in.

Come explore Minesing Wetlands—the crown jewel of the Nottawasaga River system.

A short drive from the busy city centres of the GTA, the 6,000 hectare Minesing Wetlands is a wilderness next door. One day's paddle will give you a chance to explore the swamp, marsh and forest habitats of this internationally significant wetland.

Hundreds of different animals, birds, fish, flowers, and trees make their home in Minesing. Some are rare to Simcoe County, and some are rare in the province.

As you travel through Minesing, you're likely to spot bald eagles soaring overhead, herons wading through the grasses, turtles basking in the sun, and fish splashing alongside your canoe.

Changing water levels throughout the year make for new experiences for even seasoned Minesing visitors. The high waters of late spring create open lakes in areas that typically are grass-covered and give paddlers a chance to canoe through the forest. The low waters in late summer can be even more challenging, as portaging may be needed through logjams and low sections.

This variability and the isolation of Minesing means that you need to take extra precautions before venturing out into the wetlands. A sturdy canoe or kayak are recommended; standup paddle boards are not suitable.

Although you are within an hour's drive of Canada's largest city, plan for your Minesing adventure like you would a wilderness trek!

MINESING WETLANDS CONSERVATION AREA

This route along Willow Creek is a favourite with paddlers looking to discover the wonders of the Minesing Wetlands. Putting in at the Willow Creek Canoe Corral on George Johnston Rd., you will wind your way 13.5 km downstream to where the Willow Creek joins the main branch of the Nottawasaga River.

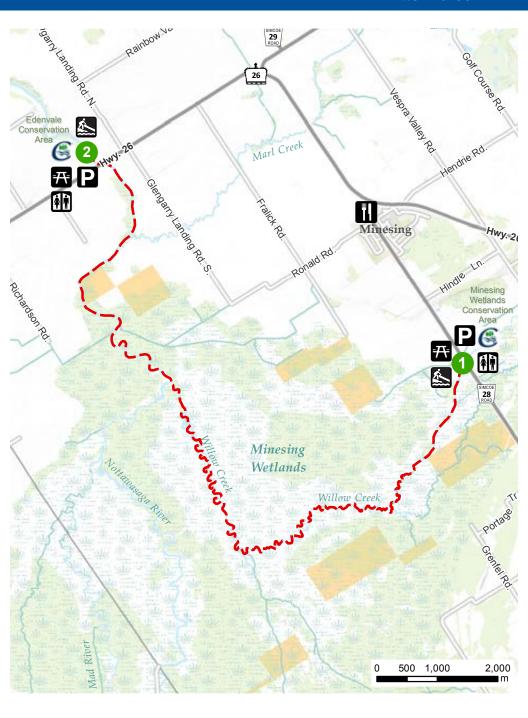

From the confluence, it is a further 6.3 km to the pull-out at Edenvale Conservation Area. This route remains passable for most of the year, but can be quite low in spots during the summer months. Along the way, you will pass through open wetlands, which in the high water levels of the spring flood give the impression of a lake.

If you are a bird watcher you will not be let down with the diversity along this route.

The Minesing Wetlands are an isolated wilderness area, and paddlers should be prepared as such. NOTTAWASAGA RIVER

Dip your paddle into the historical waters of the Nottawasaga River, where warriors, voyageurs, missionaries, soldiers, and explorers once traveled.

The main branch of the Nottawasaga River is 121 km long, dropping 300 m from its source in the Oak Ridges Moraine and Niagara Escarpment to its mouth at Wasaga Beach. The river drains almost 3,000 km² of land in the Nottawasaga Valley watershed.

Paddlers can choose to start their trip along the "Notty" mid-way down the river in the Town of Angus, and travel through the Minesing Wetlands. The route through the wetlands can be challenging, with several portages required and attention to navigation required in the spring when high water levels create open lakes in areas that are usual river channels. The challenges are made up for by the amazing variety of plants, animals and birds this internationally significant wetland offers.

Starting further along the river at either Edenvale or Wasaga Beach makes for an easier trip suitable for all levels of paddlers and those on standup paddle boards. Jacks Lake is a favourite place to drop a fishing line or explore with young children.

During the summer months, paddlers are encouraged contact the Nottawasaga Valley Conservation Authority (NVCA) at www.nvca.on.ca to check water levels along the river, particularly if they are heading into the Minesing Wetlands.

Home to the largest group of parabolic sand dunes in the entire province, this section of the River meanders along sandy shores, where you can get lost in the beauty of the crest shaped sand sculpted by glaciers and rimmed with dense vegetation.

The Wasaga Beach Sports Park offers an ideal launching point due to its many amenities. Just beyond the launch there is a series of rapids that are easy to chute through no matter what your skill level, but add a sense of adventure to the journey.

The river twists and turns through provincial park lands and fragile habitats, offering majestic views of the iconic Oxbow Dune, home to Bank Swallows and their tiny nests. It's important to respect the natural beauty of the dunes and their longstanding residents, many of which are endangered, by leaving them untouched.

Downriver expect to receive encouraging waves from the cottagers on shore and as you approach Schooner Town, the historical winter guarters of the Royal Navy of 1812.

Exit the river to your right before going under the bridge.

After the bridge the heavy boat traffic is typical, making for difficult paddling conditions.

Check the weather conditions before heading out and be aware that water levels along this route vary considerably over the seasons. Follow the safety tips given in the start of this guide, and always paddle within your ability. This route can also experience heavy boat traffic on the weekend.

Wasaga Beach Sports Park to Schooner Town

Wasaga Beach is world famous for its 14 kilometres of white sand beach, warm, clean waters and panoramic mountain views across Nottawasaga Bay.

There are five sections of the Nottawasaga Bay Route to explore as a linear route or loop. You can hug the shoreline if you seek calmer waters or paddle further out if you're more experienced but note that the winds can change at a moment's notice and the Bay can be extremely rough.

Typically the wind comes from the west, so paddling from Beach Area 1 towards the escarpment and Beach Area 6 may require extra effort.

The Bay is sandy and shallow so as a general rule, try to stay within a 4 foot depth and if you get tired, you can always walk back in.
